SCHOOL REPORT.

The School Committee of Windham presents the following report of the schools for the year 1878-9.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

The three terms of this school were taught by Miss Mary E. Reynolds of this town. The reputation she had gained as a teacher in another district in town, where she taught six successive terms with success, was a consideration of no little weight in her favor, in teaching this school. She entered upon her work here as there, with interest and zeal, and by faithful and persevering endeavors, has led her scholars along in their studies with a good degree of proficiency. She has spared no pains to have her scholars make the best possible advancement, and it is evident that a creditable measure of success has attended her efforts. Not all of them have always seemed to appreciate how much she was doing, and disposed to do, for them, as a few during the last term have taken some advantage at times of her kindness of manner, as to some points of order, although when called to an account, expressing a willingness to regard her wishes. This evil she labored hard to remove, and with the aid of the Committee her efforts were ultimately successful. The scholars generally have evinced the self-respect and cooperation with their teacher, in efforts to improve in their studies, that has characterized this school formerly, and are so creditable to any school.

The change made in geographies, and the introduction into the school of the sixth in the series of Readers in use, have added interest; also singing occasionally, as a relaxation from study, which Miss R. practices in the school-room, has been an interesting and profitable exercise. The examination at the close of the last term was sustained with much interest, affording satisfactory evidence that the school has been a profitable one.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

Miss Lizzie P. Marden of Nashua was the teacher of the summer and fall terms of this school. She had taught it before, and left an impression that prepared the prudential committee to apply for her continued services. The small number of scholars rendered it more difficult for her to interest her scholars in their studies, as is so easy for a good teacher to do, when the number is larger. But her patience and faithfulness supplied in good measure this deficiency, and her efforts in the several departments of her work were successful. And these scholars, who are really anxious and determined to learn, as is true of some of the scholars of this school will learn. Obstacles are overcome, where there is a will to overcome them; and good scholars care less about the size of their classes, than they do to make improvement.

The winter term was taught by Mr. F. J. Hughes of this town, also an old teacher in this school, whose former success prepared the way for his entering upon this term with a favorable result. The number of scholars was considerably larger than in the summer and fall. Good proficiency was made by the scholars, especially some of them, under Mr. H's tuition—a proficiency due in part to his patient and willing efforts as a teacher, and partly to the character of the scholars as already noticed. The order of the school was good, scholars showing a due regard to their teacher's wishes, and a desire to help and not hinder him in his work. The deportment, as will be seen under the head of the "Standing of Scholars," shows that in the first and third terms, every scholar attained to the highest rank, and in the second, every one but one.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Both terms of this school were taught by Mr. F. J. Hughes of this town. Here also, the success of his former efforts, as teacher of this school, prepared the way for a similar result, during the present term. It has been found a little difficult for some teachers to manage this school well, so as to combine good government with good progress. But Mr. H. has combined these results in good measure. It has also been true that some scholars in this school have been considerably behind others in attainments; and hence the need of special effort to bring the delinquent ones forward. The Committee find that the school has improved in this respect; and that while there is still a difference, there has been a more general progress than formerly. This school was the largest in attendance upon the winter term in town, and as it is growing in numbers, it is gratifying to find that it is advancing in scholarship as well as deportment. Thirteen out of twenty one in the summer term, and thirteen out of twenty nine in the winter term were neither absent nor tardy.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

Miss Nellie A. Robie of Londonderry was the teacher of the three terms of this school. The number of scholars is small, but their teacher succeeded in interesting and advancing them in their studies, in maintaining good order, and in affording satisfactory evidence of successful labor during the successive terms that she taught. Not ostentatious, but faithful, and striving in every way in her power to discharge her trust, she satisfied the Committee, that her work was well done. Seven out of ten in the summer term; the whole number of eight in the fall term; and six out of fourteen in the winter term; were neither absent nor tardy.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

Miss Annie F. Mansfield of Lynn, Mass. taught the first term of this school. It was her first term of teaching. Her methods of instruction derived from the Normal course, which she had pursued, were good, she sought to reduce these to practice, and in the main, was successful both in teaching and governing, yet she did not seem to enter into her work so earnestly as is necessary to the best results; and hence there was not so much interest nor progress on the part of the scholars as there would have been otherwise. But experience in teaching may remove this fault and lead to greater success in the future. The examination showed that there had been a creditable measure of progress.

The fall term was taught by Miss Belle J. Thompson of Hudson. It was soon obvious that the school was in the hands of an experienced teacher, who had not only taught with success elsewhere, but was striving for the best possible results here. Good order was insisted on, to the extent of seeking in a single instance the aid of the Committee. Thoroughness of instruction and love for her work were especially manifest; and as might be expected, a love of study was equally manifest on the part of the scholars, that led to steady application and improvement. Smaller as well as larger scholars were interested, and excellent improvement was made by all. Three out of fifteen in the summer term, and nine out of eighteen in the winter term, were neither absent nor tardy.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

Both terms of this school were taught by Miss Mattie Scribner of Raymond. The last term is the twelfth of her teaching this school, besides two private terms. Miss S. is devoted to her work, and labors hard to bring her scholars forward in their studies. When she sees the need of special effort on her own part, to stimulate them to effort, and to enable them to advance the more rapidly, she cheerfully makes it, often remaining after school hours to supplement efforts made in school time. And her scholars during the terms of this year, as well as previous years, have reason to be grateful to her for the unabated interest she has taken in them and in their studies, she has labored faithfully and successfully in their behalf. Different capacities and degrees of advancement are found in every school, when it is not the fault of the teacher that there is a difference, as she must take scholars as she finds them; and if she does the best she can for all, her duty is discharged. The order of the school, during a part of the last term, was not altogether satisfactory to the Committee, but with his aid and prompt effort on the teacher's part, an improvement was made that was more conducive to the best interests of the school. It is evident however that coercive measures must be resorted to, to secure good order, when appeals to self-respect have lost their power, or when scholars cannot be won by love.

The proportion of scholars in this school, who were neither absent nor tardy, to the whole number, was not so large as in some of the other schools; three out of eighteen in the summer and five out of twenty one, in the winter term.

The examinations at the close of the two terms, and the exhibition that followed the last one, in the evening, were sustained with interest.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Miss Lucy Proctor of this town was the teacher of this school, the same, who taught it in 1876. This school labors under the disadvantage of having but one term in the year, and has but a small number of scholars, although holding its number very nearly from year to year. Last year the whole number was fourteen with an average attendance of ten. This year the whole number was twelve with an average of ten. Four of this number are reported as neither absent nor tardy. The school appeared well both at the begining and close, and gave evidence of successful instruction and a good measure of progress in study. There was for a time, a little tendency on the part of some scholars to disregard the wishes of the teacher as to order, but through her efforts with the aid of the Committee, good order was secured.

GENERAL REMARKS.

During the year two districts have supplied their school-rooms with a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, an example that the Committee hopes will be followed by other Districts not yet supplied.

The long period during which Guyot's Geography has been used in our schools, and the increasing dissatisfaction with it, as cumbered with too much matter for common schools, have led the Committee to adopt and introduce in place of it, Harper's New School Geography, which will be found to be a very fine work. Being all new matter and brought up to the present time, besides having superior maps, it will in the judgment of the Committee, fully meet the present want of our schools.

Some of the Districts have, within the year, taxed themselves to supply the deficiency in the school money, as compared with former years, arising from the change in the apportionment for raising the State tax on which is based the raising of school money. This deficiency was supplied by special appropriation by the town, the year before the last. The attention of the town is called to this matter for the year to come. Either by district or town appropriation, the schools should be as well provided for as formerly. We cannot make better investments in any way than in giving to our children all needed aid, so far as in our power, for qualifying themselves by a thorough education, for the responsibilities and duties of citizenship, and of the various callings in life. Our schools are also among the means of the nations safety as well as prosperity; and we owe it to the fathers as well as to the children, to be faithful guardians of all those influences that keep the people intelligent and virtuous, since all our liberties are secure only as the people appreciate them, and intelligently defend them.

It is now five years that your Committee has been intrusted with the responsibility of our schools, which he has sought to discharge according to his oath of office. But it is now his desire, as it has been for some time, that the town will select some other one to take his place. Thanking the town for their confidence and cooperation, I respectfully submit the present Report.

CHARLES PACKARD,

Superintending School Committee.

To the inhabitants of Windham:-

The eighth annual report of the Nesmith Library is now submitted by the Trustees to the town, with the renewed pleasure it affords them to be able to say that it is still preserved with care, is gradually increasing in value as well as in number of volumes, and is widely read by the inhabitants of the town, as well as by visitors from other towns, as the report above shows.

The librarian, who has for so many years, served with faithfulness and efficiency in this capacity, presented the Trustees, in the early part of the year, her earnest request to be relieved of the office, but consented at the suggestion of the Trustees, to retain it, by having another supply her place until she could have time to obtain needed rest. They accordingly appointed the present acting librarian, Mr. W. S. Harris, who has faithfully, and so far as we know, acceptably performed the duties of the office. His report to the Trustees evinces a careful attention to the state of the library, and his books show that they have been faithfully kept.

A new, and the third supplement has been issued during the year, containing the names of one hundred and ninety three books that have been added since the issue of the second supplement, which was in Aug. 1875, showing an average addition, annually, since that time of fifty six volumes.

The thanks of the Trustees are tendered to L. A. Morrison, Esq. for the benefit of his services in preparing the last supplement for the press, the avails of which though paid for by the town, were given to the library in books purchased by him.

The addition of room for more books, now needed, which the selectmen were authorized by the town to make, has not yet been made, but should, and probably will be, soon.

We have reason as a town, to congratulate ourselves on the possession of such a library, and should evince our gratitude to its founder by keeping it faithfully in trust, adding to it as its interests may require, and improving its character as the growing wants of the present and rising generations may claim at our hands.
